MY LADY'S MONEY

By WILKIE COLLINS.

AN EPISODE IN THE LIFE OF A YOUNG GIRL.

CHAPTER XXI.

Hardyman went on to the cottage. He found Isabel in some agitation. And there by her side, with his tail wagging slowly and his eye on Hardyman in expectation of a possible kick—there was the lost Tommie!

"Has Lady Lydiard gone?" Isabel asked, eagerly.

"Yes," said Hardyman. "Where did you find the dog?"

As events had ordered it, the dog had found Isabel—under these circumstances.

The appearance of Lady Lydiard's card in the smoking room had been an alarming event for Lady Lydiard's adopted daughter. She was fully conscious of not having answered her ladyship's note, inclosed in Miss Pink's letter, and of not having taken her ladyship's advice in resisting the advances of Hardyman. As he rose to leave the room and receive his visitor in the grounds, Isabel had resolved to say nothing of her presence at the cottage unless Lady Lydiard exhibited a forgiving turn of mind by asking to see her. Left by herself in the smoking room she suddenly heard a bark in the passage which had a familiar sound in her ears. She opened the door and in rushed Tommie, with one of his shrieks of delight. Curiosity had taken him into the house. He had heard the voices in the smoking room, had recognized Isabel's voice, and had waited, with his customary cunning and his customary distrust of strangers, until Hardyman was out of the way. Isabel kissed and caressed him, and then drove him out again to the lawn, fearing that Lady Lydiard might return to look for him. Going back to the smoking room she stood at the window ... for Hardyman's return. When the servants came in to look for the dog, she could only tell them that she had last seen him in the grounds not far from the cottage. The useless search being abandoned and the carriage having left the gate, ... from the back of a cupboard in which some empty hampers were placed ... the smoking room ... he had ... decided to ...

"... servant that after the party," he answered, "The dog must be taken to the stables."

Isabel took her hand. Tommie was not ... He will make a ... and he will be taken by the ... "I will take care of him," she said.

"There is something else to think of besides the dog," Hardyman rejoined irritably. "Look at these letters!" He pulled them out of his pocket as he spoke. "Here are ladies and gentlemen announcing themselves my friends, and ... inviting ... and who ... themselves on the very day of my party. Do you know why? They're all ... my father. I forgot to tell you that he is a ... as well as a lord. Cowards! And cads! they have heard he isn't coming, and they think to curry favor with the great man by stopping away. Come along, Isabel. Let's take their names off the luncheon table. Not a man of them shall ever darken my doors again!"

"I am to blame for what has happened," Isabel answered sadly. "I am estranging you from your friends. There is still time, Alfred, to alter your mind and let me go."

He put his arm round her with rough fondness. "I would sacrifice every friend I have in the world rather than lose you. Come along!"

"What the devil do you want?" he asked.

"I have seen Miss Isabel and spoken with her," Moody replied. "Mr. Hardyman, I believe it is in your power to set this matter right. For the young lady's sake, sir, you must not leave England without..."

Hardyman turned to his foreman. "Is this fellow ..." he asked.

Moody proceeded as calmly and as resolutely as if those words had not been spoken. "I ... trouble you with no ... I will only ask one question. Have you ... the number of that bank note ..."

"Is it your business on a woman to refuse to tell her the number of a bank note?" Moody rejoined, firmly.

That answer forced its way through Hardyman's ... sense of honor. ... "You're a bold fellow," he said ... "I'll look at my pocket book."

He put his hand into the breast pocket of his coat ... turned over the ... The book was gone.

Moody watched him with a feeling of despair. "Oh, Mr. Hardyman, don't say you have lost your pocket book."

He sat down again at his desk, with sullen submission to the new disaster. "All I can say is, you're at liberty to look for it," he replied. "I must have dropped it somewhere." He turned impatiently to the foreman. "Now, then, what is the next check wanted? I shall go mad if I wait in this damned place much longer."

Moody left him and found his way to the servants' offices. "Mr. Hardyman has lost his pocketbook," he said. "Look for it, indoors and out, on the lawn and in the tent. Ten pounds reward for the man who finds it."

Servants and waiters instantly dispersed, eager for the promised reward. The men who pursued the search outside the cottage divided their forces. Some of them examined the lawn and the flower beds; others went straight to the empty tent. These last were too completely absorbed in pursuing the object in view to notice that they disturbed a dog eating a stolen lunch of his own from the morsels left on the plates. The dog slunk away under the canvas when the men came in, waited in hiding until they had gone, then returned to the tent and went on with his luncheon.

Moody hastened back to the part of the grounds (close to the shrubbery) in which Isabel was waiting his return.

She looked at him, while he was telling her of his interview with Hardyman, with an expression in her eyes which he had never seen in them before—an expression which set his heart beating wildly, and made him break off in his narrative before he had reached the end.

"I understand," she said, quietly, as he stopped in confusion. "You have made one more sacrifice to my welfare. Robert, I believe you are the noblest man that ever breathed the breath of life!"

His eyes sank before hers; he blushed like a boy. "I have done nothing for you yet," he said. "Don't despair of the future if the pocketbook should not be found. I know who the man is who received the bank note, and I have only to find him to decide the question whether it is the stolen note or not."

She smiled at his enthusiasm.

"Are you going back to Mr. Sharon to help you?" she asked. "That trick he played me has destroyed my belief in him. He no more knows than I do who the thief really is."

"You are mistaken, Isabel. He knows, and I know." He stopped there, and made a sign to her to be silent. One of the servants was approaching them.

"Is the pocketbook found?" Moody asked.

"No, sir."

"Has Mr. Hardyman left the cottage?"

"He has just gone, sir. Have you any further instructions to give us?"

"No. There is my address in London if the pocketbook should be found."

The man took the card that was handed to him and retired. Moody offered his arm to Isabel. "I am at your service," he said, "when you wish to return to your aunt."

They had advanced nearly as far as the tent, on their way out of the grounds, when they were met by a gentleman walking toward them from the cottage. He was a stranger to Isabel. Moody immediately recognized him as Mr. Felix Sweetsir.

"Hil our good Moody!" cried Felix. "Enviable man! you look younger than ever!" He took off his hat to Isabel; his bright, restless eyes suddenly became quiet as they rested on her. "Have I the honor of addressing the future Mrs. Hardyman? May I offer my best congratulations? What has become of our friend Alfred?"

Moody answered for Isabel. "If you will make inquiries at the cottage, sir," he said, "you will find that you are mistaken, to say the least of it, in addressing your questions to this young lady."

Felix took off his hat again with the most becoming appearance of surprise and distress.

"Something wrong, I fear," he ... "the better? I shall be pleased."

The luncheon was attacked by the company with a certain silent ferocity, which the waiters noticed as remarkable, even in their large experience. The men drank deeply, but with wonderfully little effect in raising their spirits; the women, with the exception of Mrs. Drumblade, kept looked at the ...

"I have only now succeeded in persuading your father to let me write to you. For God's sake break off your marriage at any sacrifice. Your father has heard, on unanswerable authority, that Miss Isabel Miller left her situation in Lady Lydiard's house on suspicion of theft."

While his sister was reading this letter, Hardyman had made his way to Isabel's chair. "I must speak to you directly," he whispered. "Come away with me." He turned as he took her arm, and looked at the ... "Where is my letter?" he asked. Mrs. Drumblade handed it to him dexterously crumpled up ...

"... bad news, dear Alfred, I hope?" she said, ... Hardyman snatched the letter from her, without answering, and led Isabel out of the tent.

"... them," he said, when they were alone, "... whether it's true or false."

... She recovered ... and returned the letter.

"... " she answered.

Hardyman shuddered back as if she had shot him.

"... guilty?" he asked.

"... everybody who knows me believes ... It is true that the appearances ... against me. They are against me still." ... she waited quietly and firmly for ...

He passed his hand over his forehead with a sigh of relief. "It's bad enough as it is," he said, speaking ... "But the remedy for it is plain ... come back to the tent."

She never moved. "Why?" she asked.

"Do you suppose I don't believe in your innocence?" he answered. "The one way of setting you right is ... to make you my wife, in spite of appearances that point to you. I'm not ... to give you up. Come back with me, and I will announce our marriage to my friends."

She took his hand and kissed it. "It is generous and good of you," she said, "but it must not be."

He took a step nearer to her. "What do you mean?" he asked.

"It was against my will," she pursued, "that my ... the truth from you. I did wrong ... Alfred. After what has happened I ... your wife until my innocence is proved. It is not proved yet."

The angry color began to rise in his face once more. "That's my ..." he said. "I am not in a humor to be trifled with."

"I am not trifling with you," she answered, in low, ...

"Do you really mean what you say?"

"I mean it."

"Don't be obstinate, Isabel. Take time to consider."

"You are very kind, Alfred. My duty is plain to me. I will marry you if you still wish it—when my good name is restored, not before."

... the guests in the distance, all leaving the tent on their way to their carriages.

Isabel. "I ask, indeed, ashamed if I have ignorantly given you a moment's pain. Pray accept my most sincere apologies. I have only this instant arrived; my health would not allow me to be present at the luncheon. Permit me to express the earnest hope that matters may be set right, to the satisfaction of all parties. Good afternoon."

He bowed with elaborate courtesy, and turned back to the cottage.

"Who is that?" Isabel asked.

"Lady Lydiard's nephew, Mr. Felix Sweetsir," Moody answered, with a sudden sternness of tone and a sudden coldness of manner which surprised Isabel.

"You don't like him," she said.

As she spoke, Felix stopped to give audience to one of the grooms, who had, apparently, been sent with a message to him. He turned so that his face was once more visible to Isabel. Moody pressed her hand significantly as it rested on his arm.

"Look well at that man," he whispered. "It's time to warn you. Mr. Felix Sweetsir is the worst enemy you have."

Isabel heard him in speechless astonishment. He went on in tones that trembled with suppressed emotion.

"You doubt it. Sharon knows the thief. You doubt ... I know the thief, Isabel, as certainly as the heaven is above us. There stands the wretch who stole the bank note."

"There stands the wretch who stole the bank note."

"Take care," he said ... "I have ... that Mr. Sweetsir ... the number of ... lost to Mr. Hardyman ... Further inquiries ... that he would send Mr. ... defaulter, and have him turned out of his club ... He started him in the face if he failed to pay his debt to Mr. Hardyman on the last day left ... the day after the note was lost. On ... morning Lady Lydiard, speaking to me of ... 'If I had given him an opportunity,' I speaking, 'Felix would have borrowed my money of me, I saw it in his face.' ... I am not only certain that Mr. Sweetsir took the five hundred pound note out of the open letter, I am firmly persuaded that he is the man who told Lord Rotherfield of the circumstances under which you left Lady Lydiard's house. Your marriage with Mr. Hardyman might have put you in a position to detect the theft. You, not I, might in that case have discovered from your husband that the stolen note was the one with which Mr. Sweetsir paid his debt. Heaven knows you may depend on it, to make sure that he had succeeded in destroying your prospects, ... a depraved villain at heart that that man never swung from a gallows."

He checked himself at those words. The shock of the disclosure, the passion and vehemence with which he spoke, overwhelmed Isabel. She trembled like a frightened child.

While he was still trying to soothe and reassure her, a low whining made itself heard at their feet. They looked down and saw Tommie. Finding himself noticed at last, he expressed his sense of relief by a bark. Something dropped out of his mouth. As Moody stooped to pick it up the dog ran to Isabel and pushed his head against her feet, as his way was when he expected to have the handkerchief thrown over him preparatory to one of those games at hide and seek which have been already mentioned. Isabel put out her hand to caress him, when she was stopped by a cry from Moody. It was his turn to tremble now. His voice faltered as he said the words: "The dog has found the pocketbook!"

He opened the book with shaking hands. A lettered book was bound up in it with the customary calendar. He turned to the date of the day after the robbery.

"There was the entry: 'Felix Sweetsir. Paid £500. Note numbered N. 7,5 ... dated 15th May, 187..."

Moody took from his waistcoat pocket his own memorandum of the number of the lost bank note. "Read it, Isabel," he said. "I won't trust my memory."

She read it. The number and date of the note entered in the pocketbook exactly corresponded with the number and date of the note that Lady Lydiard had placed in her letter.

Moody handed the pocketbook to Isabel. "There is the proof of your innocence," he said, "thanks to the dog. Will you write and tell Mr. Hardyman what has happened?" he asked, with his head down and his eyes on the ground.

"You shall write to him," she said, "when the time comes."

"... time?" he asked.

She threw her arms round his neck and hid her face on his bosom. "The time," she whispered, "when I am your wife."

A low growl from Tommie reminded them that he too had some claim to be noticed.

Isabel dropped on her knees and saluted her old playfellow with the heartiest kisses the dog ever ... when she ... "You darling!" she said as she put him down ... "what can I do ... want you?"

Tommie rolled over on his back—rose slowly to ... in ... his hind legs in the air and looked lazily at ... Moody ... "I have eaten too much; rub my stomach."

POSTSCRIPT.

Persons of a speculative turn of mind are informed that the following documents are for sale, and are requested to mention what sum they will give for it:

"I. O. U., Lady Lydiard, five hundred pounds. £500.
"FELIX SWEETSIR."

Her ladyship became possessed of this pecuniary ... under circumstances that surround it with a halo of romantic interest. It was the last communication she was destined to receive from her accomplished nephew, and there was a note attached to it, which cannot fail to heighten the value in the estimation of all right minded persons who assist this ... and paper money.

The lines that follow are strictly confidential:

"Now, my excellent aunt, ... informs me, my dear aunt, that you have decided against his ... I have not the slightest idea of what he means, but I am very much obliged to him, nevertheless, for reminding me of a circumstance which ... entirely escaped my memory ...

"I am on the point of retiring to the continent in search of health. ... important when ... Before ... called I had entirely forgotten to mention that I had the pleasure of borrowing five of you some little time since.

"On the occasion to which I refer, your language and manner suggested that you would not lend me the money if I asked for it. Obviously, the only course left was to take it without asking. I took it while Moody was gone to get me some Curacoa, and I returned to the picture gallery in time to receive that delicious liqueur from the foreman's hands.

"You will naturally ask why I found it necessary to supply myself (if I may borrow an expression from the language of state finance) with this forced loan. I was actuated by motives which, I think, do me honor. My position at the time was critical in the extreme. My credit with the money lenders was at an end; my friends had all turned their backs on me; I must either take the money or disgrace my family. If there is a man living who is sincerely attached to his family I am that man. I took the money.

"Conceive your position, as my aunt (I say nothing of myself), if I had adopted the other alternative. Turned out of the Jockey club, turned out of Tattersall's, turned out of the betting ring; in short, posted publicly as a defaulter before the noblest institution in England—the Turf, and all for want of £500 to stop the mouth of the greatest brute I know—Alfred Hardyman. Let me not harrow your feelings and mine by dwelling on it. Dear and admirable woman! To you belongs the honor of saving the credit of the family. I can claim nothing but the inferior merit of having offered you the opportunity.

"My I. O. U. ... accompanies these lines. ... do anything for you abroad? F. S."

To this it is only necessary to add, first, that Moody was perfectly right in believing F. S. to be the person who informed Hardyman's father of Isabel's position when she left Lady Lydiard's house; and, secondly, that Felix did really "forward Mr. Troy's narrative of the theft to the French police, altering nothing in it but the number of the lost bank note."

Good-by to Miss Pink—who will regret to her dying day that Isabel's answer to Hardyman was No.

Good-by to Lady Lydiard—who differs with Miss Pink, and would have regretted it to her dying day if the answer had been Yes.

Good-by to Moody and Isabel—whose history has closed with the closing of the clergyman's book on their wedding day.

Good-by to Hardyman—who has sold his farm and his horses, and has begun a new life among the famous fast trotters of America.

Good-by to old Sharon—who, a martyr to his promise, brushed his hair and washed his face in honor of Moody's marriage, and, catching a severe cold as a necessary consequence, declared, in the intervals of sneezing, that he would "never do it again."

And last, not least, good-by to Tommie. No. The writer gave Tommie his dinner not half an hour since, and is too fond of him to say good-by.

THE END.

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., has been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast. His children were similarly affected and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner. Free trial bottles of this Standard Remedy at A. B. Armstrong's drug store.

Interesting Experience.

Hiram Cameron, furniture dealer of Columbus, Ga., tells his experience, thus: "For three years have tried every remedy on the market for Stomach and Kidney Disorders, but got no relief, until I used Electric Bitters the Best Blood Purifyer in the world." Major A. B. Reed, of West Liberty, Ky., used Electric Bitters for an old standing Kidney affection and says: "Nothing has ever done me as much good as Electric Bitters." Sold at fifty cents a bottle at A. B. Armstrong's.

I procured a bottle to please him, and from the first application I found relief. It is the best remedy I have ever tried.—W. C. MATHEWS, Justice of the Peace, Shenandoah, Iowa.

PLAIN QUESTIONS FOR INVALIDS.—Have the routine medicines of the profession done you no good? And you discouraged and miserable? If so test the properties of the great Vegetable Specific, DR. Outcast London.

Much excitement has been made by reports recently published on the vile condition of the slums of London. In one cellar was found a family consisting of a man sick with small-pox, his dying wife, three half naked and dirty children, and one pig. In some parts there is one gin-mill to every hundred persons. What defilement! Yet corresponding impurities often defile the human blood. They can be cast out by Brown's Iron Bitters, the great strengthener and purifier. Mr. B. J. Strange, of Stark Lake, Florida, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is the best blood purifier I ever tried. It gives all the satisfaction a man can want."

Physicians Have Found out

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive sub-cutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact, which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

MY mother is eighty-three years of age, and has suffered greatly with rheumatism. In fact she was quite helpless, being unable to move about the house. A lady friend induced her to try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. She did so and found almost immediate relief. The power of this medicine to do good extends to all ages and a wide range of complaints. You cannot possibly regret having purchased it. Remember that rheumatism cannot be cured externally.

WHAT is more disagreeable to a lady than to know that her hair has not only lost its color, but is full of dandruff? Yet such was the case with mine until I used Parker's Hair Balsam. My hair is now black and perfectly clean and glossy.—Mrs. E. Sweeney, Chicago. m.

LONG SUFFERING

From Stone in the Kidneys.

It is by no means strange that Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful:

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Until within a recent date, I had for several years suffered greatly from Gravel, called by the doctors the Brick-dust Sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY I tried it and after using about one and one-half bottles I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough-edged shape. I send you the largest piece, that you may see of what it is composed. Since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfulness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, JAMES ANDREWS.

Smethport, Pa., March 26, 1886.

HON. JOHN I. MITCHELL is broken down in health, and his most intimate acquaintances are grieved to learn that it is because of overwork.

THE statement of a contemporary, that in northwestern Pennsylvania there is a rapidly growing opinion that Col. Quay will be the republican candidate for governor, is the quintessence of bosh.

Goode will be rejected because of his connection with the Pan-Electric scandal. Attorney General Garland would be rejected for the same reason if his name were now before the senate.—New York Sun.

Frank Hurd tried to get a seat in Congress after his constituents in the Toledo (Ohio) district had rejected him. But the republicans and protection democrats in Congress say no, and the free trader remains outside.

IF CHAIRMAN COOPER succeeds in having the State Convention called before some date in July it will prove a source of great inconvenience in many of the counties. It will necessitate the holding of two conventions.

THE Rev. Dr. Burchard, of alliterative infamy, has been compelled to resign the presidency of Rutger's Female College. It is not surprising, for how could any educational institution put up with a fool at its head any length of time?

DR. JNO. K. KANE, a brother of the late Gen. Thos. L. Kane, of this county, and Elisha Kent Kane, the celebrated Arctic Explorer, died in Wilmington, Del., on the 22d of March, aged 53 years. His wife is a sister of Secretary of State Bayard.

COL. JIM ONSLOW of Pittsburg would make a capital candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs. If Maj. Montooth was not a candidate for Lieutenant Governor Jim would very likely sail in. But the Col. is heart and soul for the major, and that means that all the work there is in "Uncle Jim" will be thrown into the scale for his townsman, Major Montooth. Whether that will nominate the latter remains to be seen.

THE Washington Post, pretty good democratic authority, has this to say about the discontent prevailing in democratic ranks: "The democratic party is not agreed to-day upon any matter in which the people of this country take a national interest. To this absence of harmony, this failure to agree about anything and the utter helplessness of the party, arising therefrom, to move in any direction, is directly chargeable the discontent which now exists.

"BUCK" GRANT, one of the General's sons, married the daughter of ex-Senator J. B. Chaffee, of Colorado. At one time the Senator placed a half million dollars in the young man's hands for safe keeping but it "went where the woodbine twineth" when the Grant and Ward collapse occurred. The senator died a few day's ago, and Mrs. Grant being his only daughter, she is left with a cool million. Perhaps former experience will teach the young people how to take care of their newly acquired possessions.

Some time before the failure of Grant & Ward, Mrs. Virginia Corbin, of N. Y., General Grant's sister, was [illegible] to place money in the firm for investment. She called at the firm office and was introduced to Ferdinand Ward. She took a dislike to him and, it is said, told Colonel Fred Grant that she believed Ward untrustworthy. A few days later Mrs. Corbin entrusted Colonel Grant with twenty-five thousand dollars, which he invested with the firm without her knowledge. When the crash came General Grant, in looking over the accounts, discovered that the firm owed Mrs. Corbin this amount. As he was preparing for the end he charged his family to pay all debts caused by his unfortunate connection with Ward. On Wednesday of last week Mrs. Grant sent a certified check for $25,000 to Mrs. Corbin, in payment of the investment. Mrs. Grant, it is said, received the money from the publishers of her late husband's book.

A GIVE-AWAY LETTER.

The Philadelphia Record of Monday last, contains a photographic copy of the original letter of ex-Senator Wright to Sup't Hipple, of the Mt. Joy school, of January 30, 1884. This letter reveals a state of affairs which existed in that institution over two years ago, and three months ago there were not fifty men in the state who would have believed that they ever existed. It does look as though the state authorities, and particularly the inspectors, Rev. Sayres and Mrs. Hutter, had been terribly remiss in the discharge of their duties. How could they have made any examination worthy the name, without discovering some of the disgusting deformities which Mr. Wright acknowledges were marked features of the Mt. Joy institution on the 30th of January, two years ago? They will undoubtedly lose their positions as the governor has discovered in his recent examinations of the schools, that in more than one instance the testimony of the principals and teachers has proven that the visits which they were required to make have not been made. He has also found inventories of clothing and material on hand which contained items which the matron of at least one of the institutions swore that she had never had, but which bore the "O. K." signature of Inspector Sayres.

"You will likely have some visitors from the G. A. R. encampment, which meets at Lancaster city next Wednesday, February 6. You need not be surprised if members drop in on their way to or from the encampment. I need say no more, only see the cook and all other departments, and have no mistakes anywhere. I much fear trouble from this encampment for Mount Joy. If frozen feet, toe nails dropping off, itch, etc., with your four months' record of deaths, etc., do not warm up our G. A. R. friends I shall feel that I am no prophet. All these matters are sure to be investigated and brought up at the encampment; so get in shape to meet charges and receive visitors. I forgot to caution Sherbin in writing him yesterday about next week. Talk it over with him and matron, and get to work and in shape."

THE MONUMENT.

The work of placing the monument in honor of our dead heroes is rapidly progressing. The site has been selected, the excavation and foundation made, and the bases are now on the ground ready for setting. It is safe to say that within two weeks from the present writing, the monument, in all its imposing significance and beauty, will be standing in the court yard a silent but impressive memorial of the virtues of patriotism. We understand that the entire cost of this beautiful shaft, which when erected will be about thirty feet high, will be $4,200. Of this sum $1,000 will be raised in Smethport alone, $700 having been already subscribed, and if one fourth of the entire cost is raised in our borough, patriotism and the desire to commemorate the actions of those who fell in our defense must be low indeed if the remainder is not promptly and easily raised from the rest of the county. It is proposed to send out subscription lists into every city, borough and township, thus giving to all an opportunity to be identified with this noble enterprise, and when the whole sum needed has been raised the several lists showing the contributions of each locality will be published. No one can afford to ignore this appeal for aid. It is surely easier to honor the brave deeds of others than to furnish examples worthy to eternize. Not one who is called upon to aid this object would sell his own life for the amount he is asked to contribute, nor for the amount contributed by his neighbor, nor for all the honors bestowed upon the dead. It is easier to give than to die and the lighter duty falls on us. This is the only monument of the kind in McKean county. Nearly a quarter of a century has passed since these brave men died, and this is at best a late and feeble recognition of their deeds. It has been deferred too long already and the monument ought now to be erected promptly and its cost as promptly paid. This is a sacred duty urged alike by the ties of consanguinity and the sentiment of gratitude, and let us imitate our heroes in the execution of this duty. They shrank not from danger, toil, nor death. They fled indeed from cowardice and dishonor but on the field of battle "their feet stood fast," and with their own breasts they shielded their country. Let us, then, give liberally of our substance that the memory of brave men may not perish from the earth.

THE democrats nominated a candidate for governor once because he had lots of money, but he failed to get there. There is some talk of their doing so again this year but they should remember that Packer had more money than Coxe has.

THE REPORT.

Commander Gobin has received the report of the committee appointed to examine into the abuses of the soldiers' orphans' schools, and on Friday last issued an order indorsing its action and instructing the members of the committee to hold themselves in readiness for such duty as may in the future be required of them. The order concludes thus:

The various complaints received from individual comrades are receiving careful attention, and should any such cases not be met by the present investigation they will receive all due consideration in the future.

In reference to applications received from those connected with schools for further and special examinations by the committee, we must conclude that if any parties feel aggrieved the courts are open, and that by actions to recover the money claimed to be due, then an adjudication can be had which would have the sanction of the law, and the result be accepted by all citizens as a proper disposition of the questions involved and of the rights of all interested.

The grand army of the republic is interested in these schools—in the pupils—and not in their management, except as such management affects the well-being of the children. With this in view the committee was appointed and its efforts were directed accordingly. It is proposed to have a complete and thorough investigation of these charges, and posts should suspend individual action in matters receiving the attention of headquarters, at least until they have made their intentions known there. This is necessary to secure united and intelligent action.

BUSINESS ON THE FIRST FLOOR.

The proceedings in the Payne investigating committee now going on in the Ohio legislature are showing up some racy transactions. A newspaper man and senator seems to have had an eye to business about the time Mr. Payne was elected. A dispatch from Toledo of the 13th inst., says:

"Senator Elmer White, of Defiance, the big frog in the puddle, appeared before the committee at his own request. He was questioned closely about several of his financial transactions. On April 10, 1879, White and Blymer put a chattel mortgage of $4,608.02 on The Defiance Democrat, and this mortgage was refiled and filed again, and was alive and kicking at the time White was elected state senator. On April 5, 1880, this mortgage was joined by another of $4,600, which was also uncanceled at the time of White's election. Misery loves company, and another mortgage of $3,322.92 was added on July 7, 1881. Another joined the gang on April 3, 1882, for $175, but it was paid off on March 25, 1883. A mortgage for $3,500 was pasted on with the rest. Its date was July 7, 1883. Mr. Payne was elected United States Senator in January, 1884, and the fun began. Mortgages 1 and 2 were canceled on February 2, 1884, and No. 3 was lowered from $3,322.92 to $1,045.64, when it was renewed on June 28, 1884. This made a total of $11,185.30 of which the senators salary of $600 managed to cancel.

A Good Move.

The following resolutions were adopted by the trustees of the State Hospital for the Insane, Warren, Pa., on the 18th inst., and the request is made that they be published in the papers of this county:

Resolved, That the physician-in-chief and superintendent be requested to give general notice that from two to six o'clock of the afternoons of the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month, he will give advice and counsel to those who may feel that the symptoms of mental disorder are developing in themselves, or in any member of their family.

Resolved, That the physician-in-chief and superintendent be also requested to prepare a series of papers, for general distribution, on the prevention and causes of mental disorder.

A Point for Soldiers.

Second Comptroller Maynard has rendered a very important decision on a question arising out of the act of April 22, 1872, which directs that every volunteer soldier who enlisted for three years prior to July 22, 1862, under the president's proclamation of May 3, 1861, and the orders of the war department issued in pursuance thereof, and was actually mustered for three years before August 6, 1861, into any regiment, company or battery which was accepted by the war department under such proclamation and orders, and who was honorably discharged, shall be paid the full bounty of $100 under and by virtue of the said proclamation and orders of the war department in force at the time of such enlistment and prior to July 22, 1862; provided such bounty has not already been paid. The second Comptroller holds that said bounty is payable to the heirs of every deceased soldier, who, if living, would be entitled thereto, whether he died before or after the passage of the act.

W. S. LINSCOTT, Niles, Ohio, had scrofula for thirty years, and "Dr. Lindsey's Blood Searcher" cured him. Isn't it wonderful? m

DR. JOHN NORRIS.

Tom Jones, the man who contributes largely towards making the Harrisburg Telegraph one of the most readable papers of the State, has this to say of another bright newspaper man, all of which is true to the letter:

"The enemies of John Norris, the fearless journalist of the Philadelphia Record, who exposed the rotten condition of the soldiers' orphans' school management, are saying all sorts of mean things about him, among others that he only undertook the expose of these schools to gain notoriety. That is simply Bosh—Bosh with a big B. Norris gained all the notoriety a man could wish for when he broke up the bogus diploma colleges in Philadelphia—a piece of work that has never been surpassed in this country of sharp newspaper men. When he tackled this soldiers' orphans' business Norris had some feeling in it, for he himself is a soldiers' orphan, his father having been killed on the Gettysburg battle-field while fighting gallantly on the soil of his native State. As an orphan Norris was educated and graduated at Girard College, and before he was twenty-one was one of the bright galaxy of reporters that Cathcart Taylor gathered about him on the Times. His father being a soldier, it was but natural that Norris should enter into the work of exposing the mismanagement of soldiers' orphans' schools with great zeal. How well he performed the work, I leave you to judge. The man who says that John Norris only works for notoriety had better put his hand over his mouth, and be very careful lest some day Norris be set to learn his history."

General Niles' Illness.

The friends of Auditor General Jerome B. Niles in this city and throughout the State will regret to learn that his illness has assumed a serious form, having developed into typhoid pneumonia. Happily there seems to be no alarming symptoms, but the malady is always a dangerous one. General Niles was seriously indisposed when he left his office here a week ago last Friday and was cautioned against the danger of attending to the duties of his office, but his devotion to duty held him at his desk as long as possible. It is to be hoped that he will soon recover his health.—Harrisburg Patriot.

THE W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

Vote of Thanks to Hon. A. G. Olmsted.

The Womans' Christian Temperance Union of Ceres, again tender most grateful thanks to Hon. A. G. Olmsted, for refusing to grant licenses in Ceres township for the ensuing year, and pray that he may be spared to uphold the right, and put down the wrong; for, though withholding licenses does not entirely prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors, any more than laws against robbery and murder prevent those crimes, yet it does make a most wonderful change for the better, and our young men and boys are not so liable to be drawn into the fearful vice of intemperance, as if it were constantly before them; and though there may be in the future as there probably has been in the past, violations of the law, they have not the dignity and influence of a legal business, and must take rank with the offensive things, done by stealth.

The Petticoat Brigade.

CERES, PA., March 18, 1886.—From the special correspondence of the last Sunday News, from Bradford, we take the following:

"About half the married men in town experienced the drudgery of kitchen work, squalling babes nursed themselves and children prepared their own toilets and started off for school almost famishing for food several days this week. Evidence of squalor was presentable in many a household, and this was all caused by the absence of wives in Smethport, the county seat, which was thronged with them. They had a long petition profusely signed by married women, old maids and school children, praying his Honor not to grant any licenses for the sale of wines, ales, beer or liquor in Bradford or McKean county. The signatures failed to disclose the names of any of the business men, with the exception of one, or representative citizens, so Judge Olmsted paid no attention to it and granted licenses by the wholesale. The what is considered well merited snub to the petticoat brigade has excited the wrath of the latter, and it is well for Judge Olmsted that he has "no wool on the place where the wool ought to grow."

Being a member of the petticoat brigade, or in other words a W. C. T. U. woman, I beg leave to reply to the above reproaches in the order in which they come.

If about half the married men in Bradford were obliged to do a wife's work in the kitchen while she did temperance work in the court room, it should stand to the everlasting disgrace of those men, that with the power of the ballot in their hands, they should force this necessary work upon their empty-handed wives. No true-hearted, modest woman (and the ranks of the W. C. T. U. are full of them) will voluntarily leave the seclusion of her home for the publicity of the court room; and when you see such a woman in such a place, you may rely upon it, that woman has been made to feel the weight of the nation's curse.

If it is true, and we very much doubt the truth of the assertion, that little babies were left to cry uncomforted, while their mothers waited upon the judge, we would say in behalf of those mothers, that their babies were not the only ones to cry, last week, for a mother's care. The correspondent doubtless forgot to mention the fact, that the mothers of some Bradford babies were away from home, washing, to earn the scanty pittance needed to keep souls and bodies together, while the fathers of those little ones spent freely at licensed saloons, the money which should have bought food for their wretched families.

And the poor school children had to wash their own faces and comb their own hair and perhaps, they went to school in torn jackets and soiled aprons. How sad! We wonder as we contemplate the heartlessness of those mothers, how many beer and whiskey saloons the children had to pass on their way to school, and if those mothers were not thinking of the drunkards' rags and soiled characters, which their boys were in danger of getting from those legalized schools of crime, when they went in a body to Smethport to lay before the judge a petition that such places should be closed. "A petition signed by married women, old maids and school children."

"Presumptuous womanhood! "Does man then set himself above the Creator?" said a good woman when told of an instance where a judge refused to notice a similar petition. "Why, God Almighty hears the prayers of even women and children."

In regard to the last assertion, we are not a "wool pulling" but a christian organization, and strong in the strength of right we shall go forward in the work which the Lord has given into our hands, and in the spirit of malice toward none and charity to all, shall continue to send up petitions, not only to our earthly lawmakers, but even to the Court of Heaven.

FROM a late address of John B. Gough in Y. M. C. A. Hall, in New York city: "We paid in this country last year to 170,000 retail liquor dealers $800,000,000, and were taxed $500,000,000 more for the crime, poverty and huge machinery required to take care of results. This enormous sum of $1,300,000,000 was paid for what? Not for bread, meat, or clothing; not for homes and comfort; not for health and education, but for the enlargement of prisons, the multiplying of places for the helplessness, the needless sickness, the preventible misfortunes, the vagrancy and brutal crimes that all the property you and I possess is levied on to pay for. It scatters no beauty or blessing in a single home. It holds back no murderous hand. It is a factor in all that degrades and imbrutes. It promotes crime and fills the land with blood. It fosters improvidence, and creates poverty. Is it not a blunder that such a trade is permitted to exist—not only permitted, but protected, patronized and defended as no other trade is in our land? The outrages cause but a passing shudder and feeble protest, while the awful work of ruin and death goes on. A young man, apparently respectable, went to the police to give himself in charge, he said he had hurt his wife. They found her lying on the floor, her throat cut, the babe five months old sitting by her side, with her little hands smearing her mother's blood on her baby face. Were such a horror produced by any other agency than drink, the whole community would be stirred to the very depths with righteous indignation. But it is simply recorded in the daily papers as an item, without a protest; and this goes on and on. Shall it go on forever? God forbid. If we can do nothing more, we can and will protest against so demoralizing and ruinous a traffic. Protest at home and at the ballot-box; strike hard at the drinking customs at public receptions, at the decanters and the whisky flask, at the cut glass of the moderate drinker and the rum jug of the inebriate. Strike in the name of justice, purity and humanity. Strike for the love of country, and in behalf of suffering women and children. Strike in our churches, at our family altars, at our private praying. Strike till we die and by God's help we shall do something to repair the most awful national and social blunder of the nineteenth century.

Mt. Jewett R. R. Accommodations.

The stopping place for the trains at Mt. Jewett is just as inconveniently located as it can be, and it can never be any better. There is scarcely room enough for a decent depot building, and no room for a town. It is certainly half a mile from the town to the coop where people buy their tickets to take the trains for either road. We care not who is responsible for the location, it is not where it ought to be. As long as it remains where it is the traveling public who take the trains at that point will be greatly discommoded. A party of four of us a few days since had a little taste of the inconvenience the public is subjected to on account of this location, by being compelled to foot it in the rain a half mile or more to take the cars for Kane. The R. R. people should see that this nuisance is abated at the earliest moment.

Kane is to have another [illegible] just opposite the depot and adjoining [illegible] We were unable to learn the name of the enterprising party or parties who have located.

Hon. L. Rogers of the MINER, B. F. Wright of the Wright House, A. H. Peirce of the Peirce House and Hank Swarthout all of Smethport were in town Thursday attending the regular meeting of the G. A. R. at Odd Fellows Hall.

[illegible] of the opera house last Saturday night [illegible] the best show that has [illegible] the services of a good troupe for once this season.

It is rumored that Kane is to have another hotel opposite the [illegible] property on Fraley street. We are informed that it will be a railroad boarding house and that Mr. J. Duffy will move to the railroad boys, will have the management of the house. We trust the rumor has a foundation, as hotel accommodations are rather slim at times here.

Mr. S. R. Brooks of Warren, has rented the Campbell property adjoining the old post office and an addition is being built to the main part for the purpose of carrying on the hotel business. A first-class restaurant will also be opened to the public. Mrs. Brooks comes among us highly recommended and Kane gains and Warren loses an estimable citizen.

Union Oil Company's No. 7 well on 425 came in Sunday last, and started off at 300 barrels. Oh they will ring in a good one once in a while, for some one has got to be on the line if "Mike" Murphy isn't. "Mike" has had bad luck in the Kane field, every venture turning out to be a gasser. But cheer up old boy your turn will come soon, still adhere to the old adage, "if at first you don't succeed try, try again," and try until you do succeed.

RAMBLER.

Kane, Pa., March 24, 1886.

IMPORTANT.

Elegant rooms fitted up at a cost of one million dollars, reduced to $1 00 and upwards per day. European plan. Elevator. Restaurant supplied with the best. Horse cars, stages and elevated railroad to all depots. Families can live better for less money at the Grand Union Hotel than at any other first class hotel in the city. vol 23 no 11 ly

Only Temperance Bitters Known.

No other medicine known so effectually purifies the blood of deep-seated diseases.
Millions bear testimony to its wonderful curative effects.
It is a purely Vegetable Preparation, made from the native herbs and roots of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.
It removes the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health.
It is the great Blood Purifier and Life-giving Principle; a Gentle Purgative and Tonic; a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the power of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to.
The Alterative, Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Anti-Bilious, Solvent, Diuretic and Tonic properties of VINEGAR BITTERS exceed those of any other medicine in the world.
No person can take the BITTERS according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
Bilious, Remittent, Intermittent and Malarial Fevers are prevalent throughout the United States, particularly in the valleys of our great rivers and their vast tributaries during the Summer and Autumn, especially during seasons of unusual heat and dryness.
These Fevers are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these organs, is absolutely necessary.
There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as it will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.
Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed.
It invigorates the stomach and stimulates the torpid Liver and Bowels, cleansing the blood of all impurities, imparting life and vigor to the frame and carrying off without the aid of Calomel, or other minerals, all poisonous matter from the system. It is easy of administration, prompt in action, and certain in its results.
Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Pneumonia, Dizziness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart and a hundred other painful symptoms, are at once relieved by VINEGAR BITTERS.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, the Bitters have no equal. In these as in all constitutional Diseases WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS has shown its great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.
Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to Paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take occasional doses of VINEGAR BITTERS.
Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Swellings, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations, Humors and diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of the Bitters.
Pin, Tape and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like VINEGAR BITTERS.
Measles, Scarlet Fever, Mumps, Whooping Cough, and all children's diseases may be made less severe by keeping the bowels open with mild doses of the Bitters.
For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, this Bitters has no equal.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood when its impurities burst through the skin in Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when, and the health of the system will follow.
In conclusion: Give the Bitters a trial. It will speak for itself. One bottle is a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.
Around each bottle are full directions printed in different languages.

WHAT IS DYSPEPSIA?

Among the many symptoms of Dyspepsia or indigestion the most prominent are: Variable appetite; faint, gnawing feeling at pit of the stomach, with unsatisfied craving for food; heartburn, feeling of weight and wind in the stomach, bad breath, bad taste in the mouth, low spirits, general prostration, headache, and constipation. There is no form of disease more prevalent than Dyspepsia, and none so peculiar to the high-living and rapid-eating American people. Alcohol and tobacco produce Dyspepsia; also, bad air, rapid eating, etc. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will cure the worst case, by regulating the bowels and toning up the digestive organs. Sold everywhere.

An Old Soldier's EXPERIENCE.

"Calvert, Texas, May 3, 1882.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.
